New Chamber Of Commerce Officers Introduced At Annual Banquet Monday

HENRY SIEBMAN, first vice-president

Annual banquet of the Cameron Chamber of Commerce was held last Tuesday night at Simon-George Memorial Hall at which time Ben Magness was introduced as new president of the organization.

Henry Siebman was also introduced as the first vice president of the group for 1957 and Hilliard Thomas as second vice president. Retiring officers were Drayton McLane, president; Magness, first vice president, and Charlie Burke, second vice president.

Guest speaker of the evening was Leonard Blaylock, Federal Bureau of Investigation division chief in the San Antonio area. He told the crowd of approximately 260 persons that prevention of conditions under which criminals are created must depend upon the communities while the FBI, sheriff's offices and city police duties are mainly for apprehending such persons following their breakage of the law.

His explanation of this duty on the part of individual communities was emphasized with a story of con-men in action. Such men, he said, are those who "feel the world owes them a living." A study of backgrounds of such apprehended criminals show they got their start in early youth partially because of environment whereas under different circumstances they "could have been successful in any field of endeavor."

Directors of the coming year of the Chamber of Commerce are Bill Burns, O. B. Horstmann, Dana Kestenbaum, Calvin Markham, E. A. Perrin, E. L. Wied, Jimmy Wiggs and Richard Williams for one year terms. Two-year term holders are Gus Elly, William F. Arthur, Earl Curtis, Don Humble, Magness, A. W. McCullin, Siebman and John Davis. Those to serve on the board for the three-year terms are Gene Blake, Leo Fuchs, O. B. Harden, Wiley Loughmiller, Louis McKee, Milton Schiller, Thomas and O. A. White.

Magness was named by Lester Williams as winner of the coveted McCullin Award for 1956. This award is given the person determined by the Chamber of Commerce as being the outstanding citizen of the year.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Jack Prescott, who also introduced officers of the Cameron Junior Chamber of Commerce. These officers are President Humble, Vice President George Bowman, Secretary-Treasurer Fred Switzer and State Director Richard Williams.

Retiring directors of the local Chamber of Commerce are Dr. Bowman, N. L. Caperton, Albert Collins, Burke, Prescott, Lester Williams, McLane and J. C. Andres.

A number of questions have arisen on the part of interested district cooperators concerning the virtues of coastal Bermuda Grass in the Little River-San Gabriel Soil Conservation District.

According to Adrian I. Moore, soil conservationist stationed in Bartlett, here are some of the expectations that may be considered in connection with the performance of this grass within the district as compared to common Bermuda grass.

Coastal Bermuda Grass

Small acreages of coastal Bermuda grass have been growing within the district for the past five or six years. It is still considered a new grass, however, with a great deal of proving out to be done before it can be accepted as a reliable pasture grass.

In general, these features about the grass will be noted. Coastal is a more vigorous ranker growing grass than common Bermuda grass and has the ability to produce much larger quantities of edible forage. In every instance it has been preferred by livestock in their grazing habits over common Bermuda. It is well adapted to all sites where common Bermuda grass is well adapted or at home.

These sites of course are in connection with the deep moist-natured alluvial soils found in connection with bottomland soils along large and small streams and tributaries. It may not have the ability to produce on high upland sites and on shallow soils as well as common Bermuda, but it should be kept in mind that neither of the grasses are actually at home under such conditions. The further up the hill, the poorer the performance is the general rule for the Bermuda grasses.

Survival

Common Bermuda may survive higher up the hill than coastal but neither will have the capacity to produce that they have in bottom lands where they are more adapted. Over-grazing the first year will completely destroy all of the unusually long spreader runners coastal produces. These should be allowed adequate protection and time to thoroughly root down. Over-grazing at anytime is very detrimental to the quality of sod turf it is capable of producing.

When under the same fence with common Bermuda or other less palatable grasses, overuse of the coastal to the point of eventual destruction or elimination may be noted before utilization of the common Bermuda is realized. Small irrigated and fertilized plots of the coastal Bermuda grass have performed nearly unbelieveably.

Drouth Conditions

It should be properly noted that all coastal Bermuda grass plots in this distirct area have been grown under drouthy weather conditions. Many of them, even so, are quite good. We have no way of knowing just what the grass could do for us under a normal climatic year.

The greatest problem in trial of the grass encountered to date has been the high cost of planting material and unavailability of the planting material. The district board of supervisors has as yet been unsuccessful in their effort to promote a source of local supply of the grass. It is their belief that an acreage of this grass on suitable sand for planting material harvest could be a profitable cropping enterprise for several years.

King Ranch Bluestem

Complete plantings of King Ranch Bluestem grass as soon as possible, say Soil Conservation Service personnel of Bartlett.

This has reference to planting time within the area of the Little River—San Gabriel Soil Conservation District, they add.

From all present indications, a greater acreage of this particular grass is planned for seeding on district cooperator farms this year than ever before. This will probably be realized despite the fact that cost of seed is at an unparalleled high since the original introduction of this grass to the district.

Past performances on the part of plots seeded to King Ranch Bluestem indicate a more successful result has been realized from those plantings which were made early. Say from the middle of February to the first of April. Volunteer seedlings from the grass may have emerged as early as the first of February. Such seedlings are often killed by freezing temperatures, however. Late April, May and June plantings have given rather poor results as a whole but a part of this can be attributed to drouthy weather conditions.

Seed have been available to date through local dealers of the district.

Further planting information may be had by contacting your Soil Conservation Service offices.

Falls are the home's greatest hazard, claiming a total of 14,000 lives annually in the nation, says the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council. Burns are second, causing about 5,400 deaths annually while poison and carelessness with firearms each take about 1,000 lives yearly. Better keep the danger sign up around the house and see that accident hazards are removed, warns the Council.

LITTLE RIVER PHILOSOPHER AGREEABLE TO TAKING AID, BUT NOT TECHNICAL AID, FROM EXPERTS IN WASHINGTON.

Editor's note: The Little River Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Little River probably has been reading too much international news, his letter this week indicates.

Dear editar:

I was reading in a newspaper last night which a banker friend in town handed me yesterday, some people have the idea bankers are tight-fisted but this one just handed me the paper without asking me to sign a thing, where some experts in Washington are urging the Federal government to extend financial and technical aid to depressed areas in the United States the same as it gives to some foreign countries.

As I understand it, the aid to foreign countires is given on the understanding the countries, now sort of tottering a little, will build up their strength against Russia and won't spend any of the aid money for Russian goods.

I believe I can meet those terms satisfactorily. I'm tottering a little, have been for years, and I will be glad to build up my strength against Russia and I guarantee I won't spend any of the money for Russian goods. In fact, I'll go even further, I'll guarantee to spend it within a 25-mile radius of my farm, within two weeks after I get it.

However, there is one point I'd like to clear up. I notice the experts are proposing both financial and technical aid for depressed areas like my farm.

I can save the government some money. It won't be necessary to send any technical aid out here to me. I'm a democrat. I don't won't any preferential treatment. Just treat me like King Saud. As I understand it, they're fixing to give him a couple of hundred million dollars and ask him to ignore the Russians. Those are the kinds of terms I'm interested in.

As for technical aid, I guess a technician could be of some use on this place, if he knew how to swing a hoe, grease a tractor, fix a flat, patch the roof, repair the back door step, and things like that, but my information is that most technical aid comes on paper, and me and King Saud ain't very interested in that kind of help.

It's the cities that need technical aid, I don't have any parking problems out here on this farm, and when the government gets around to figuring up the kind of assistance a depressed area like this needs, it can skip the technical part and just send me the money. I'll keep it out of the hands of the Russians.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Melon Growers Discuss Market

Commercial melon growers of Milam County met to consider production and marketing problems connected with the 1957 commercial melon shipping season at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 5, at the Milam County Farm Clinic meeting at the Rockdale Vocational Building.

Tentative acreage figures for the area's commercial melon crop were compiled. These figures are to serve as basis on which an intensive program of local melon promotion will be introduced Majority of the 1957 melon crops will be marketed under the "Milam County Sugarmelon" label which was used for the first time last year.

Special films on handling of the commercial melon from the vine to the market was one of the program's highlights. Also on the agenda was a discussion by technical experts on the 1957 market outlook, indicated acreage in the competing shipping areas and varieties, culture and insect control. These portions of the program were under the arrangement of George Davis, technical representative for Stauffer Chemical Company.

Milam County's commercial melon crop brings this area from a quarter to a half million dollars annual income.

She is survived by her husband; four children, John Howard, Mary Jane, Martha June and Paul White, all of Rockdale; her mother, Mrs. L. A. Crenshaw of Oklahoma, and a sister, Miss Louis Marie Wilson of Oklahoma.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy to us at the loss of our little daughter, Marcy.

We especially wish to thank those, who sent the beautiful flowers.

FIRST OFFICIAL ACT of Cameron's new police chief was performed last Saturday morning, March 2, shortly after he had been sworn into the office by City Attorney Bill Black. Police Chief Maynard Byers, who is replacing former Chief Willie Dolan following his resignation, places a fire extinguisher in the Cameron police car. With this equipment, he explains city policemen may at times arrive at a fire and have it out before fire trucks can reach the scene.

TO ALL MEMBERS OF OUR FIRE DEPARTMENT
OUR GRATITUDE

Cameron may well be proud of its efficient men of the Fire Department. The instantaneous response to our call for help on Thursday, February 28th, could not be equaled. They were on the spot exactly 58 seconds after their call and promptly extinguished what could have been a disasterous fire had they not been so alert.

It take a considerable amount of planning, practice and coordination to make such efficiency possible. Above all, it requires personal time, willingness, determination and sacrifice from each man. It is a great satisfaction therefore to know that we are protected by such conscientious and able workers.

THANK YOU GENTLEMEN FOR A JOB WELL DONE.

Sincerely,
MILAM MOTEL

Within the past four years the railroads have contributed to the farmers, ranchers and dairymen, through a 50% reduction in rates on hay and other feedstuffs, 25 million dollars.

Both the Congress of the United States and the Legislature of Texas, by resolution, have expressed their thanks to the railroads for this substantial contribution.

Through the years the railroads have always extended a helping hand to their neighbors in times of disaster. To us this is a basic responsibility of good Americans.

Worship together this week

We are well blessed. The doors of our churches and synagogues are wide open . . . waiting for us to enter. Set aside a time each week . . . a time apart from the "busyness" of living. You'll find more joy in each day, if you give some time each week to worship.

And the Wolf family here—will you just look at those boys! They're feeling very grown-up and proud as punch, going to a Service with Mom and Dad.

Here's Dave Judson and Bill Miller. Good friends for a good many years now. They hardly ever "talk" religion—they just always find time to get to Services each week.

Ever been a stranger in any town? Then you've known loneliness. And you know how comforting it is to come upon a church or synagogue . . . where the doors are always wide open to everyone.

Our American Legion

Valor, said one of the great philosophers, is something lightly remembered. Is that true here in this town? We don't thing so. We remember. We remember the faces and figures of our boys who marched away for World War I — and our lads who donned uniforms for World War II. The American Legion is a fraternity of these men who, when the occasion arose, took up arms in OUR defense. Do THEY remember? Most certainly. They remember everything they and their buddies went through; and now with their regular meetings at the Post, they glory in the fact that they constitute one of the greatest, most influential forces for good in our nation. All hail our heroes who proudly wore the Blue and the Khaki!

1957 Commerce In Cameron . . .

Cameron's Chamber of Commerce has a new head for the forthcoming year. This leader of a group recognized as one striving to improve our economic conditions locally for the year ahead is Ben Magness.

Magness is to be ably assisted by two other men as vice-presidents. These are Henry Siebman and Hilliard Thomas. From these three men, there are great expectations for a larger and better Cameron.

To their predecessors-Drayton McLane, Charlie Burke and Magness in the role of a vice-presdient-we wish to extend our deepest appreciation along with other Cameron businessmen and citizens for a job well done.

For these now taking office to guide the growth and prosperity of our city, we wish to express our sincere belief that you will carry forth the projects laid out by previous Chamber of Commerce officers and directors. We believe you will each individually and together strive to make "our town" grow and prosper.

In a town the size of Cameron, there is so much to be done that we realize one of your greatest problems will be to determine what is to be first. We hope the businessmen belonging to the the Chamber of Commerce and those that are non-members, will all be of assistance in carrying out the aims of this group toward gaining a better city.

Cameron is the one city in Central Texas which in the past few years has been showing great growth. It still needs more and better industries and businesses and improvements of many phases. Officials of both the city and county governments are now making steps to aid in gaining these improvements. City councilmen only recently have started a project toward acquisition of better streets and better water supply. County commissioners are seeking improvements of highways leading into the city.

To grow, the city must gain new business, industry and source of employment for the working man. This is the one phase of growth with which the Chamber of Commerce can do much. Letters and phamphlets showing what there is to offer in Cameron for such enterprises should be sent post-haste to all seeking new sites. We believe the Chamber of Commerce headed by Magness, Siebman and Thomas will do much in carrying out such methods in attracting new phases of commerce to our city.

The best of luck to this organization and its leaders for 1957.

Good Hunting . . .

For some time lying dormant, the Milam County Sportsman Club at present is making a very wise effort to become again the leader of better hunting and fishing in our county.

These sports of the field have over the last few years began to die in Milam. Sportsmen interested in these sports are leaving the county to seek recreation and pleasure elsewhere. Fishing and hunting facilities are dying out. Farmers and ranchers in this county are getting to a point where they must post "no hunting and fishing" signs to keep their crops and livestock from being damaged.

Views of both the sportsmen and the farmers and ranchers are understood by the officers of the Milam County Sportsman Club and many of its members. Thus the club is beginning to seek ways and means to gain local sport in the field and at the same time assure the property owners nothing will be damaged.

The club officers point out that their offer of $50 for the apprehension and conviction of violators of hunting and fishing laws is still in effect. They seek to have areas for field sports made available so men of this county can seek game here and teach their own youngsters the enjoyment and pleasure in hunting and fishing.

This club needs the aid of every person in furthering the understanding of these pleasures and at the same time recognizing the rights of property-owners on whose land they must trespass to find this recognition.

Police Chief Arrives . . .

Maynard M. Byers was on duty at the Cameron City Hall by 8 a.m. Friday, March 1, as the new chief of police here. Yet, he was not officially sworn in as head of the police department until early Saturday morning.

And then it was the city attorney, who performed this duty. The city judge was detained or otherwise unable to see the head of this department seated in his official capacity. Why?

This seemingly in our opinion is a sloppy way for the head of our police department to be received on his first day of duty. Byers is a new man in Cameron. A man employed by our city government to enforce the laws of the city and at the same time to know and understand the businessmen of the town. Maybe such does not call for his being received by a brass band.

However, it seems as head of a major department of the city's government he could at least have been sworn in on his arrival that first day with some type of ceremony. Furthermore, it also seems some official of the city government on those first days could have escorted this man around our city and introduced him to the citizens rather than leaving him to make himself known to those he will serve in future months by himself.

Chief Byers in the future will be called upon daily by men, women and children in every walk of life to perform some type of duty. It is hard enough to ask for assistance from one known personally and far more so of a stranger.

The new police chief in Cameron during the future will sooner or later have to step upon the toes of many of us. Recommendations on which he has been employed assures us he is capably qualified for doing his duty with prejudice toward none.

He has to some extent been handicapped in these, his first days in Cameron. Thus when he or members of his force perform their duty in regards to you as an individual, don't look upon such acts as those of a stranger but of a man simply carrying out his duty; doing what he has been employed to do.

To City Attorney Bill Black, members of the police department and other minor officials of the city government, we offer our congratulations for their efforts in getting Chief Byers off to a good start.

At the same time, we wonder about other members of this governmental body for their ignoring of the new chief's presence during his first two days in Cameron and for their failure to accompany him around the city and introduce him to those voters, who have placed them in offices of trust.

Yezak Presents Bill On Water

Rep. O. H. Schram of Taylor and Rep. Herman Yezak of Bremond introduced a bill as co-authors to validate the organization and creation of Brushy Creek Water Control and Improvement District.

This bill ratifies the boundaries, confirms the election creating the district and electing its direction and declares the district to be a governmental agency with certain powers and limitations.

A safeguard in the bill provides and no bonds will be issued until they have been approved by voting taxpayers in the district at an election set for that purpose.

The Brushy Creek watershed area extends over portions of Williamson and Milam counties.

People Take Over in Duval County; County Government Has New Look

By--FREDERICK HODGSON

SAN DIEGO, Tex.--Things are different in Duval County.

No matter how brightly the lust for liberty burns, it takes a little know-how to jump in and operate a government according to the Constitution. Before the "clean-up," Duval County leaders had had their government run for them since before World War One, and unashamedly admitted they were rusty as the nails in the Ark. They obtained and circulated elementary textbooks on county government and read them like dime novels.

As a result, Duval County became a textbook on democracy. It would have made any county in the United States ashamed of itself to see Duval citizens religiously attending every meeting of the school boards and the commissioners court in such numbers that crowds had to stand out on the courthouse lawn.

This is the courthouse, here in San Diego, Texas, where Parr's non-supporters say they were never allowed to enter unless they were summoned. They never saw the inside of the district courtroom, they say, "unless we were being tried for something we did not do." The meetings of the commissioners court and school boards were always held in secret, if at all.

After "Operation Cleanup" an invisible line developed down the middle of the courtroom, dividing the Parr people from the non-Parrists. Many of the Parr people had relatives under indictment. Every day was a big day in court, with overflow crowds. One day the Duke himself appeared to answer an indictment. Another day a handful of school trustees arrived, with a motion to quash an indictment. The next day half a dozen lawyers tangled with District Attorney Sam Burris and the "State men." Now and then a Ranger stood up or shuffled his feet to remind the participants that "It's peaceful here, and we aim to keep it peaceful."

The courthouse is the Sanctum Sanctorum from which all but Parr's "Old Party" members were excluded. There are other places besides the courthouse that used to be rigidly off limits to Parr's opposition, but not any more. The San Diego Community Center, a public building, now is accessible to any group of citizens, no matter how they vote. And that's new in Duval County.

No sir, you wouldn't know the old Duchy with its new look. People stand around in the drug stores and talk about whatever they please without whispering, without looking over their shoulders to see who is near. This is maybe the biggest, the most striking change.

Business has picked up in the Duke's domain. Manuel Marroquin, whose tortilla bakery was put out of business by Parr, started over again before he began publishing his newspaper, the New Duval. He had to set up his cafe across the line in Jim Wells County, just outside San Diego. But all the old customers who had quit trading with him on the Duke's orders came back. They bought his tortillas and his milk, and now they read his newspaper.

A lot of Duval residents are coming back home to work from the surrounding counties where they say Parr drove them by forbidding their employment in Duval. Some have been traveling 20 to 60 miles to their jobs in Oilton and Falfurrias and Alice because nobody would hire them in George Parr's county. There are many in this category—exiles from sunup to sundown, six days a week. Now they're coming home.

Life, business, government, even love—they've all been haywire in this haywire county, and are getting back to normal. Boys and girls who couldn't date each other and fall in love because one family had Parr's blessing and another his curse, now can give Cupid a free rein. The invisible barriers of hatred are falling down. Romeo and Juliet have come into their own.

In the schoolrooms the distinction — the discrimination — between the kids of "Parr people" and others has pretty well vanished. You don't have to be the child of an "Old Party" family to go to the fair now and sell your 4-H Club calves and lambs. If you're poor, you don't have to be a Parr follower in order for your kids to get free milk at the school cafeteria. Giving milk to one child and withholding it from another for reasons of politics is just one of the many quaint practices condemned by Duval County grand juries that have been looking into things since the State of Texas moved in on the stronghold of the Duke.

The changes in Duval County don't mean that Parr isn't still fighting. Those who know him best say he'll be fighting when the iron doors clang behind him. The men who hang around the courthouse, the ones who couldn't hang around there before, will tell you that George Parr's ghost will walk those dim halls fifty years after he has fought his last fight.

You don't get rid of 40 years of Parrism quickly. A whole generation of men and women in one Texas county have been born and brought up in a climate of fear, hatred and distrust. There are those who have always eaten at the public trough, always had the protection of a Big Boss, and always helped him elect his candidates, spy on his enemies, destroy his opposition. In Duval County there are still many of these, and they have children. Their Golden Age has passed away, and they will mourn for it because they, like the Duke of Duval, have been born in the wrong century. They are a part of feudalism, part of a day when little kings dominated a few hundred square miles of earth, overtaxed their impoverished serfs, and amused themselves with senseless wars.

But the rest of the people in Duval County have just come into their Golden Age. They have a new dignity. They have a new hope. They have a County Auditor, an impartial grand jury, supervised elections, and police protection. As one Duval rancher put it, the clouds have parted and the sun has broken through.

To be sure, the sharp crack of legal conflict is still heard. There is still tumult and shouting in Judge Woodrow Laughlin's district courtroom. But the roar of the big legal artillery that has rattled the whole State of Texas for three years, while George Parr and his friends fought ditch by ditch to hold their fortress intact, has died out. The final score has yet to be tallied, but the trend is clear. The watchers in the grandstand are picking up their pennants and going home, and the boys in the press box already have written their copy for the morning edition.

What does the Duval story mean to the State of Texas?

My colleague, Franz Rosenwald, has seen more than one dictatorship rise, flourish, fizzle and die. He says there are two things to remember about dictatorships.

First, they don't just fizzle by themselves. They have to be helped along by people who are fed up with them. Second, there's not much hope for people who get rid of one dictator and fail to lock the door against the next one. And there is always a next one.

Under the Texas Constitution there's not likely to be a dictatorial governor, nor even a Legislature that gets too far out of line. The old state charter was written in 1875, when carpet-baggers were crawling all over the capital, and the men who wrote it made provisions against abuses of power on the state level. They made Texas counties relatively autonomous, letting them retain much authority which ordinarily belongs to a state. This is especially true of the criminal law.

This local autonomy is a good thing, provided you have safeguards against its misuse. But once a county boss learns enough law to take advantage of the loopholes, you've got a dictator on your hands. This is the way former Attorney General John Ben Shepperd explains it:

"By controlling elections through threats, bribery or the miscounting of the ballots, you control the sheriff, the county and district judges, and the county and district attorneys. Your puppet district judge appoints the grand jury commissions, and they appoint the grand and petit juries. Since you control the offices, you can lock up or destroy the records, thus removing the evidence. You cannot be arrested, indicted, tried, convicted or sentenced. You are the law in your county."

If you steal or misapply the county funds, nobody will know it because you can just refuse to let them see the records. There are few penalties for such secretiveness. Besides, whether you are accused of hiding records or stealing money, or both, you have to be indicted in the county of the offense. And, remember, the grand jury is in your own pocket along with the judge and the prosecuting attorney.

In most cases you can't even be sued for the money you have scooped out of the till, because recovery suits can only be started with the permission of the governing body of the agency you have stolen from. When Shepperd's office and District Attorney Sam Burris filed a suit to recover money misapplied by the Duval County Commissioners Court, the Commissioners effectively stalled it by refusing to go along with it. It took a couple of dozen court hassles in three different counties and several changes in county commissioners to straighten the mess out.

Back to those secret records. There is no adequate law under which you can be removed from office for refusing to show them. And you can always do as the county auditor of Duval County did. He stood on the Fifth Amendment and refused to say where his records were kept on the grounds that it might tend to incriminate him. There's no law against that, either.

Texas needs many new laws to protect its citizens against another "Duval County." Fifteen corrective measures have been introduced in the Legislature, by the Texas Press Association. Each of these "Better Government Bills" merits public support.

Cameron Livestock Auction Growing

Cameron Livestock Auction is now operating subject to the regulations of the Packers and Stockyards Act according to W. C. Ball of Fort Worth, district supervisor of the Packers and Stockyards Branch, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Stockyards in Cameron can now operate under these federal regulations because of the size of the yards and the great extend of local handling of livestock. "Livestock markets with 20,000 square feet of space or more, handling livestock for buyers shipping to other states, are subject to this law," Ball explained.

Congress designed this law to protect the interest of farmers and ranchers selling livestock at markets which operate on a commission basis. Market operators are also given protection. Communities in which such yards are located are assured of a well established and financially strong market outlet for its livestock plus a reliable source of supply for packers.

When a yard is "posted" as the local yard is now, it becomes subject to the highest operating standards set out in the law, Ball said.

The Packers and Stockyards staff check a posted market ever so often to varify the accuracy of its scales, general accounting of funds to farmers, charges for marketing, feed and other services.

Ball says Texas has more markets operating under the Packers and Stockyards Act now than any time in history and with the additional recognition of the Cameron stockyard, this number is now about 50.

Land which has been placed in the Soil Bank, either the Acreage Reserve or Conservation Reserve is still eligible for Federal cost-sharing in carrying out practices under the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP). County ASC committees can supply information on the practices available in your county.

Nearly 75 percent of Northeast Texas commercial forestlands are in small private holdings of 21 to 5,000 acres.

NEW! FOR COTTON

Eliminate 2 to 4 early-season dusts or sprays!

Plant seed treated with

THIMET®

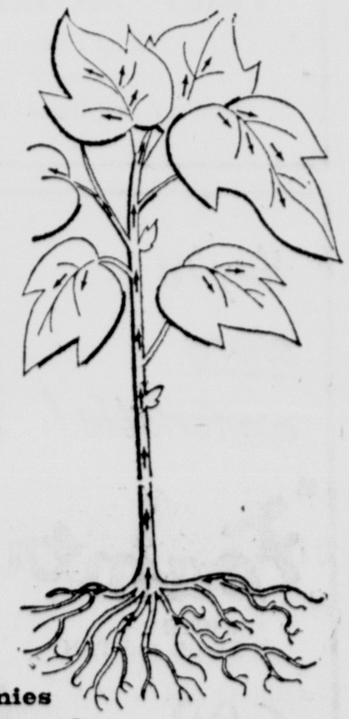

Revolutionary new insecticide—applied by commercial seed treaters—grows into plant, makes cotton deadly to thrips, aphids, mites through first 6 weeks of growth.

Systemic action of Thimet gives plants "built-in" protection. You save the time, money and labor normally required for first six to seven weeks' spraying or dusting.

Protects all parts of all plants during critical early weeks. Ordinary sprays or dusts protect only parts of plants covered by insecticide. But because Thimet actually grows into the plant, it protects every leaf, every stem, right from the start. Plants actually kill insects before they can do damage.

Eliminates problem of timing sprays or dusts. No matter when thrips, spider mites and aphids strike, your cotton stays protected. Even when fields are too muddy for conventional spraying or dusting equipment.

Proved in 3 years of testing . . . 1 year of grower use. Thimet was developed by American Cyanamid after years of research and experimentation. It has been successfully tested by state and federal experiment stations throughout the south.

How Thimet® works. As plant sprouts from treated seed, Thimet is absorbed and sent to all parts of plant tissue. Entire plant becomes toxic to insects. After Thimet's job is done, it breaks down, leaves no harmful residues in cotton fibre or seed.

These companies will treat your seed or supply seed treated with THIMET:

Eastern Seed Company • Taft, Texas
Rogers Delinted Cottonseed Co. • Waco, Texas
Southwest Sprayer & Chemical Co. • Waco, Texas
Southwest Agricultural Supply Co. • Rockwall, Texas

MILAM COUNTY COURTHOUSE WITH CROWDED CONDITIONS are illustrated in the above three photographs. Photograph No. 1 shows the East-West Corridor on the first floor, looking east. This picture illustrates the wasted space for corridors and poor lighting facilities. Photograph No. 2 pictures the south corridor, which is used as the office of Justice of Peace B. G. Rice for want of other space. Use of hallways for offices is not only a handicap for county officials and employees but is also disconcerting those for participating in JP activities such as court trials and weddings. Final picture (Photograph No. 3) shows the entrance to the county clerk's office on the first floor. This entrance is only 30 inches wide while the office itself is overcrowded. Ordinary office furniture must be taken out of the office through the windows.

Additional Court House Facts As Viewed By County Judge

By Judge C. C. Smith, Jr.

(Editor's Note: Following is another installment of Judge C. C. Smith's series of articles on the needs for Milam County-owned buildings. These are his views and do not necessarily conform with those of this publication nor with those of other county officials.)

This is the fourth in our series of articles concerning our courthouse and the problems it presents in its present condition.

Some of our citizens who have read the previous articles are already pressing us to come forth with some suggestions as to how the problems already mentioned can be met. While we appreciate their concern and congratulate them on their interest in public affairs, we urge them to bear with us until the entire problem has been defined and all of the facts have been set forth.

After that we will attempt to present some possible solutions in keeping with our means; and indeed, we intend to show how some other counties similar in size and nature to Milam County have met the same problems in their respective counties.

This we shall attempt to do in a manner that will be factual and without personal opinion, as to what might be the preferable solution, for as we stated at the beginning, the problem is one which concerns all of our citizens, and they alone can and should solve it in the light of the best available information.

First Floor

For this article we discuss the first floor area in the courthouse. This area is split east and west and north and south by large corridors. By reference to Photograph No. 1 you can see that the east and west corridor is wasteful of a lot of space.

Actually, this hallway is 12 feet wide and 82 feet long. It is not possible to utilize any of this space in its present condition. The same thing applies to the corridor running north and south except, however, that the Justice of the Peach maintains a desk in this corridor for want of other suitable space (See Photograph No. 2)

Spaces on the first floor are allotted to offices for the superintendent of public instruction, county courtroom, county judge, county treasurer, county clerk and county auditor.

A general inspection of these areas will disclose that they are crowded and that there is a general difficulty of cleaning and maintaining these premises. There is evidence of foundation failure in that the terrazzo floor has cracked and is losing its bond to the concrete slab below. The whole interior needs painting and refinishing, and the lighting, heating and ventilating facilities are totally inadequate.

Photograph No. 3 shows the main entrance to the office of the county clerk. Did you know that this doorway is actually so small and narrow that ordinary office furniture can only be moved into this office through an outside window after taking down the bars!

Crowded Space

The county superintendent's office is extremely overcrowded by reason of the fact that it has insufficient space allotted to its various functions. Much of this area is utilized as general storage area for textbooks for which purpose it was not designed.

It is necessary for the drivers' license representative of the Department of public Safety to use the north-south corridor as a office and waiting room to serve our citizens needing drivers' licenses because no other suitable area is available. On any Monday morning there is a large crowd of our citizens waiting to see this representative, and the conditions under which he works and under which our people await his services are uncomfortable and inconvenient. In addition, this Monday morning chaos intrudes upon the operation of the other offices.

It will also be noted that there are no sanitation facilities on the first floor for either the employees or the public.

Approximately 40 percent of the first floor space is wasted by large corridors. Actually, the first floor contains 3,913 square feet of useable space. There are 1,649 square feet of this space set aside to corridors and stairs. Photograph No. 1 shows the vast amount of wasted space in hallways and poor condition of this area.

A detailed study of the services now housed on the first floor disclosed that additional room is required at this time as follows:

County Superintendent's Office
—614 square feet—
County Auditor's Office
—156 square feet—
Justice of the Peace
—320 square feet—
County Judge's Office and County Courtroom
—1,038 square feet
County Clerk's Office
—1,547 square feet—
(which is exactly 100 percent more area than is presently allotted!)

We take the position that in order to do our job adequately we should have the proper tools and equipment. With that thought in mind and with the co-operation of the commissioners, we succeeded in remodelling the county courtroom so that it is a combination conference room and courtroom, not only for commissioners' court but also for probate, civil and criminal matters falling under the jurisdiction of the county judge.

We have received many comments on these simple improvements from our visitors, who note the contrast with other areas of the building.

We remind those who have visited these quarters that most of the furniture, the books and shelving, and the airconditioning equipment, was installed by us at our own expense, without expense to Milam County, and is our individual property.

However this may be, it does demonstrate it is possible to make some improvement where there is a will. We believe that a vast majority of our citizens desire that our public buildings be large enough, clean enough, and pretty enough to serve conveniently and adequately the needs of our people. Little by little as you study the facts in this problem you become convinced that the present setup is wholly inadequate under today's conditions and requirements.

We again urge you to take the time to pay your courthouse a visit so that you can see for yourselves what the true situation is.

In the succeeding installment we will take up the second floor area.

County 4-H Club Council Formed

There were 21 girls and boys from Buckholts, St. Anthony, County Wide, Milano, Gause, Ad Hall, Thorndale and Pavilla 4-H Clubs, who met in the District Court Room in Cameron to organize a joint Milam County Boys and Girls 4-H Council on Saturday February 23.

Officers elected for this group were Jeannette Richter, chairman, member of the County-Wide Club; Stella Inge, vice chairman for girls, Buckholts Club; Benard Jungmann, vice-chairman for boys, County-Wide Club; Louise Mitcham, secretary, Milano Club, and Arthur Inge, Jr., treasurer, Buckholts Club.

This group is to be composed of two representatives from each 4-H club, which will be the president and one elected council delegate.

All the plans for 4-H activities in the county will be made and presented through this group.

Chairman Jeannette Richter, appointed Benard Jungmann, Stella Inge and Rose Mary Matula as the Standing Rules Committee to meet with Miss Peggy Wilsford, state 4-H club leader, and the county home demonstration agent and assistant county agent to draw up the standing rules for the council. This group met again Monday, March 4, in the county agent's office.

W. A. Wilkerson Family Gathers

For the first time in 10 years, members of the W. A. Wilkerson family held a reunion recently at the home of Joe Delaney in Texas City.

W. A. Wilkerson of Cameron, who is now 87-years of age, recalled stories and events of his childhood for the other four generations of his family present.

He said his earliest recollections were of former years of drought and especially of the one in 1879.

He contributes his long life and good health to "plenty of hard work."

At the gathering were his daughter, his grandchildren, several great-grandchildren and one month old Cathy Sue Caldwell. This was the first time Wilkerson had seen the only member of the fifth generation of his family.

The eldest of the Wilkerson family had been an active cotton farmer until his retirement about a year ago. He retired because of failing eye sight.

Those present at the gathering, which will become an annual occasion in the future, included four families connected with the National Carbide Company in Texas City. These were the Joe Delaney, Dude Caldwell, Jim Caldwell and Bill Clements families.

The reunion was a typical family get-together with the wives bringing food for the dinner served.
